

OSA Oil & Acrylics Materials List

Palette—glass, plastic, or treated wood

Palette knife

Low odor paint thinner {oil only}

Small jar with a lid (for holding low odor thinner used in oil painting)

MEDIUM: Gamblin's Neo-Megilp is recommended for Oil painters. For Acrylics painters just water is needed. For traditional acrylics Golden's Retarder is recommended (see Paint below).

BRUSHES: Hog bristle brushes recommended for the kind of brush techniques we will be following. Size 8 and a size 10 or 12. Also a 2" house painting brush—cheap at Fred Meyer. Otherwise bring any brush you enjoy using.

PAINT: For oil painters most brands are fine—student grade paints have a slightly lower quality but are cheaper and will work fine for this class. Most of the major brands of oil paint have a line of student grade paints. For acrylics painters stick to the stiffer paint sold in tubes and not the Liquitex variety you find in plastic containers. IMPORTANT: Golden's is a good brand for acrylics and is the only brand that makes OPEN acrylics, which dry more slowly and allow more time to work with the paint. Golden's OPEN acrylics are recommended for the acrylics painters. If you are using the faster-drying regular acrylics, a medium is recommended to extend drying time. Golden's Retarder is a good extender for regular acrylics. Other mediums for oil and acrylics will be discussed during the first class.

COLORS: To start, get Titanium White; Cadmium Yellow Deep (sometimes called Cad Yellow Dark, or, for the Acrylics painters, Diarylide Yellow in Golden's OPEN Acrylics); Burnt Sienna; Burnt Umber, Ultramarine Blue; Cadmium Red Medium or Light. For the oil painters only, Bohemian Green Earth (also called Terre Verte) is recommended. These colors are to start with and more colors will probably be added as you go.

STORE INFO: Blick's has lots of sales and you can get most everything you need there, with locations in Portland's Pearl District and in Beaverton. I've Been Framed at 4950 SE Foster Rd. is another good store for bargains in some paint supplies.

SUPPORT: A stretched canvas is recommended but canvas board or canvas paper will work.
